

GENERAL JAN SMUTS VISITED DUBLIN ON DE VALERA'S INVITATION

HOPE FOR ERIN PEACE IS BRIGHT

Leaders when he enters into negotiations for the truce.

The military axiom that once fighting is called off it cannot be resumed is true to some extent also in Ireland. Therefore, de Valera wants guarantees that the Sinn Fein political demands will be met before he orders a cessation of hostilities.

And it was this aspect of the situation which was discussed in London yesterday and newspapersmen were assured that the result of the deliberations was to point positively that there will be a formal truce tomorrow.

And this means that no effective opposition to de Valera's request for guarantees developed at the important conference.

No official announcement will be made to enlighten the world of the progress toward peace until the next Dublin conference meeting is concluded, but the outlook for peace is the brightest.

Privately the belief is expressed that the men now interested in the Irish question are actually engaged in working out a settlement of the century-old problem of Ireland.

NO DEBATE ON BOMBING.

The Pall Mall Gazette said last evening:

"A distinguished peace maker, presumably General Smuts, is indicating that the line of procedure will be to proceed with the formation of a Southern Irish Parliament and to work through the two Parliaments, North and South, toward an agreed settlement.

In the House of Commons in the afternoon a number of members attempted to put questions on the Irish situation, but they were blocked by Sir Hamar Greenwood. He declared that a debate on the matter now would be inadvisable in view of the more hopeful circumstances in Ireland.

At the Irish office here today officials expressed the belief that an Irish truce will be arranged and that once stopped it will be very unlikely that the war will be renewed. The office, previously pessimistic, turned markedly hopeful over night.

General Smuts attaches the greatest importance to a truce, and has declared to Premier Lloyd George that once the fighting is stopped "it will take a lot to start it over again."

SHOOT GIRL AND KILLS SELF FOR SPURNED LOVE

CAMDEN, N. J., July 7.—Unrequited love resulted in a double tragedy here today. Miss Florence Bradley, nineteen years old, is dying in the Cooper Hospital and her twenty-year-old sweetheart, John Paris, is dead with a self-fired bullet in his heart.

"He shot me because I turned him down," gasped Florence at the hospital. "I didn't want him."

Both lived in Camden county. Paris was a young farmer.

COPS SWELTERING IN 7-POUND COATS BY CHIEF'S ORDER

Gessford Compels D. C. Police-men to Wear Regulation Uniform in Hot Weather.

"What's wearing that heavy blouse for?" asked a headquarters cop, doing office duty at Police Headquarters this morning. The temperature was hovering about 100 degrees and beads of perspiration were running in dribbles over the cop's brow.

"Is orders!" rejoined the cop, as he wiped away the sweat from his forehead.

Then the questioner was told that only recently Major Harry L. Gessford, Superintendent of Police, had issued orders that all members of the police department, except civilian clerks, when on duty should wear the regulation uniform.

In the last few years, most of the patrolmen detailed to do clerical duty at police headquarters and at the precinct police stations, have either performed their clerical duties in their shirt sleeves, or worn light Alpacas coats of dark color.

But Major Gessford, desiring that the clerks and others working at police headquarters and at the precinct stations make an official appearance, gave the orders that the regulation uniforms be worn.

"It's pretty tough to have to sit around with the heavy blouse on," remarked a precinct policeman, "but orders are orders." The policeman's blouse weighs about six pounds and also weighs heavily on the shoulders of the clerk-patrolmen.

Appeals have been made to Major Gessford to rescind his order, for the summer at least.

property would be as of the date stated.

That was fine. It indicated a spirit of co-operation and fairness seldom found in dealings between a commission and a utility.

SPLIT ON VALUATION.

But the company claimed that the value to be allowed as a basis on which to fix a fair profit should be much more. It claimed, and now claims, that its value should be what the property would cost on the basis of the higher prices for materials and labor that have obtained since July 1, 1914. No claim is made that the material and labor costs for construction put in prior to July 1, 1914 were on the high level that has since obtained, but nevertheless the company contends that it is entitled to the benefit of those high levels, just the same as if it had paid them.

Specifically, the company has added 40 per cent to the agreed reduction figures, contending that that represents the increases that have occurred since. The commission, of course, has not allowed the claim in fixing the fair value of the property, and whether it is allowed by the courts remains to be seen.

The point is that the tendency of privately owned utilities is to increase capital value per mile (or per whatever unit of measurement applies) while the tendency of publicly owned utilities is to decrease capital value per mile, or other unit.

The difference is fundamental and highly important. Under private ownership, it means that utilities constantly get more and more into debt, and have to pay more and more interest, which in turn must be collected from the public.

Under public ownership, it means that the utility constantly keeps paying off its indebtedness, which decreases its interest payments, and makes it possible to reduce charges.

P. O. IS ONLY OFFSET.

And you can put the following statement down as gospel:

As long as public utilities are allowed to INCREASE their indebtedness per unit, and are allowed to earn a return on that increase, they can NEVER reduce their charges.

The same situation as to claims for capital value applies to the Washington Railway and Electric, only more so. It's claims are greater than those of the Capital Traction.

This condition alone, without numerous others, brings you inevitable and logically to the conclusion that the only final, hundred per cent remedy for our trouble in the District is for the Government to step in, take over both properties, and run them in the interest of the public.

INTERESTS FRAMED NEW TARIFF BILL, IS CRY IN HOUSE

Another "Battle of the Century" Due When Measure Comes Up for Debate.

(By International News Service.)

The biggest political and economic battle that the national has seen for many a day was under way when the House of Representatives was called to order this afternoon.

The Fordney tariff bill, sponsored by the Republican majority, was the bone of contention.

Republican members were aroused to a high pitch by the attack made on the bill by Congressman Garner in the report for the minority, in which the Texas legislator charged that it had been drafted with "trickery" for the benefit of a few men who financed the Republican party.

Garner's bitter attack upon the measure, which would supplement the Underwood tariff bill, created a considerable sensation, and there were promises that the House would have its own little battle of the century, during the coming weeks.

To add to the strife came word from the State Department that several foreign governments have made official protests against the bill, and that these representations are being forwarded to Congress.

VETS BONUS AGAIN ATTACKED BY U. S. COMMERCE BOARD

Calls for Constructive Legislation in Lieu of Rewards in Cash.

A fresh attack on the proposed cash bonus to former service men was made today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, when it sent to all members of the Senate a letter directing attention to its probable cost. The minimum amount that would be paid out by the Government under the bill now being debated in the Senate, it is pointed out, exceeds the total annual cost of government for the fiscal years 1915 and 1916.

The Chamber calls for legislation in the aid of veterans, which would have constructive purpose and opposes the cash bonus and the equivalent certificate plan. It emphasizes the desirability of enactment of legislation which would assure adequate and prompt relief for injured men.

Its program suggests in part:

"1. Legislation should be passed for prompt and adequate relief for injured veterans.

"2. Provisions for uninjured veterans should not be considered until provision has been made for our injured soldiers."

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

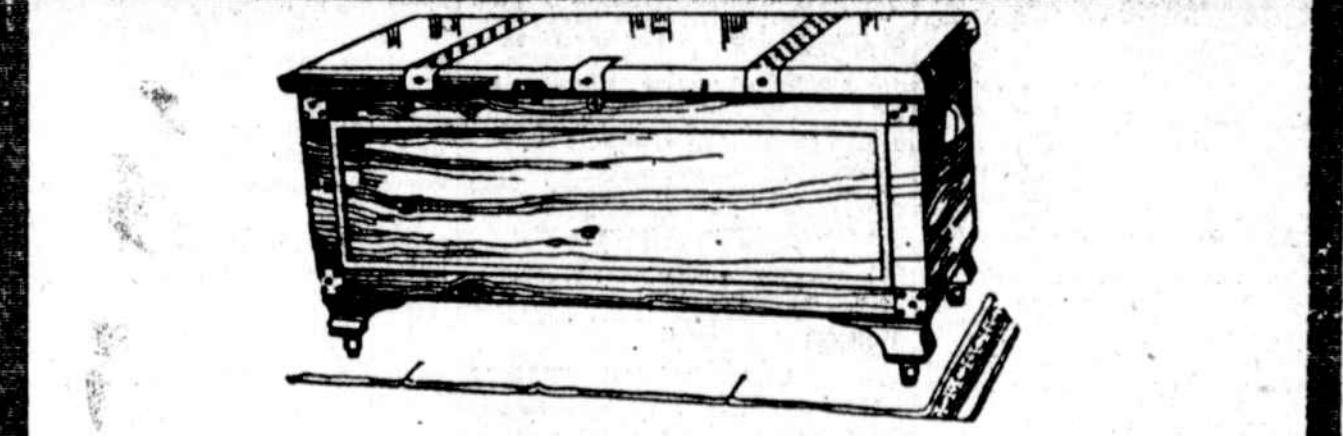

Take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

Clearance of Genuine Cedar Chests at Very Low Prices

People who have learned the great value and usefulness of cedar chests would not think of being without one or more.

Keeping your clothing or furs absolutely safe from moths and dust they will save many times their cost. Then, too, they are ornamental, and make a handsome window seat.

The comparatively few remaining in our stock are the better ones, highly polished to bring out the beautiful graining of the genuine cedar, heavily bound and trimmed with burnished copper.

At these clearance prices you can buy a really fine chest, and a large one, at the usual cost of the smaller, ordinary styles. And we'll gladly charge it on an account, arranging terms that will suit your convenience.

SLAYER OF NURSE AT ANNAPOLIS TO HANG NEXT MONTH

Daugherty Won't Grant New Respite to Henry Brown Unless Judge Intervenes.

Henry Brown, colored, who murdered Miss Katherine Kavanaugh on the Naval Academy reservation a few months ago, probably will hang on August 2, unless Federal Judge Rose at Baltimore should join in a recommendation that clemency be exercised, because of newly discovered evidence tending to set up a conflict in the testimony of material witnesses.

Attorney General Daugherty said today that Brown's case was before him after a respite by the President postponing the death sentence from July 2 to August 2. Daugherty said the record in the case was now being reviewed by him and that he would reach an early decision.

Commenting on the failure of Judge Rose to recommend clemency, Attorney General Daugherty said that it is the policy of the Department of Justice in this and all other cases involving homicide to follow closely the views and recommendations of the trial judge. The department, he said, in this or any other similar case, would not go into a retrial of a case which had been fairly and justly handled by a Federal court.

KABER WAS KILLED TO GET INSURANCE, WITNESS ASSERTS

business man of Chicago, who married the woman when she was a girl of sixteen, may be called on to help the defense in order to save the woman from hanging.

Indicted with her mother, it was learned today.

Husband No. 2, David Frinkel, a Cleveland barber, who divorced the accused woman because of her "temperament," said to be a member of the faculty of Smith College, who the State claims soothed the disturbed mind of the "murder queen" by his wooing, revealed today that the alleged lover masqueraded under the name of "Leo Stanley" while in Cleveland, where he "followed up" an affair with Mrs. Kaber begun in Chicago.

Another alleged lover of the woman will figure in the trial—Frank de Carpo, who, according to the State, went to the beautiful Kaber home to court, the nurse in attendance on Kaber and stayed to woo the mistress of the house with all the ardor of his Italian blood.

Evidence that S. Cala, now in jail, and Vittoria Pizzilli, still at large, who Cala claims wielded the stiletto which stabbed Kaber to death, were members of a "blackhand" gang nation wide in its operation, which hired out men to kill or wound at so much per job, is among the sensational features promised by the defense.

"ART OF KILLING."

The art of killing may be explained at length at the trial to support the defense' novel claim that the accused woman proved her intent was to "pink" her wealthy husband, not to murder him, by the fact that she hired experts who knew "how to strike and kill."

Pizzilli went at the job with the art of a perfect craftsman and faithfully followed orders "not to kill," according to the defense. He was careful to use his stiletto only on those parts of Kaber's body where stab wounds would do the least harm, and with equal carelessness he inflicted no wound more than four and one-half inches.

"We will show exhaustion killed Kaber, not the stab wounds," says Corrigan.

The accused woman, instead of being an "arch murderess with the cunning of a Lucretia Borgia," as the State describes her, is no older mentally than a girl of nine or twelve, the defense claims.

The Binet test and alienists will support this claim, according to her attorneys. Other experts will testify she is suffering from "parietic brain" as a result of the degenerate acts of Kaber.

"Grandmother" Brickel, the mother of Mrs. Kaber, also indicted for first degree murder, is seriously ill. The claim that the old woman signed a statement confessing complicity in Kaber's murder to save her son was made today by her attorney, John J. Moore.

MOTHER MAY TESTIFY.

"The old woman signed the statement only after she was told by the police that her much beloved son had been arrested for Kaber's murder," said Moore. "She thought to save him and signed the statement."

"I am attending Mrs. Kaber's trial to look after the old woman's interests; I shall object to the introduction of her alleged confession by the State."

There is a possibility that the old woman may be granted immunity to testify for the State, it was learned today.
